Preparing For Big Wing on Eagle Hotel

Ancient Stables and Wagon Sheds Being Taken Down to Make Space for 200-Room Addition With Elevator and Other Modern Equipment.

Workmen have begun to demolish the stables, barn and wagon sheds which form part of the Eagle Hotel property on Main street, preparatory to the work of excavation for a new wing which will be added to the hotel on that part of the lot. This will be the first of a series of improvements and additions contemplated by William J. Turck, who recently bought the hotel for the purpose of enlarging it and making it one of the largest and most modern in this section.

The Eagle Hotel stables and barn are historic as to famous trotting horses which have been sheltered there and also as to smell, but they have no place as part of a modern hotel and their prompt removal by Mr. Turck may be considered an example of the modern business methods which will be instituted. The land now covered by the stables, barn and sheds is too valuable to continue to be encumbered by buildings of that character for which there is no further use since the universal adoption of the automobile as means for transportation.

At present the stables, barn and sheds cover a lot 145 feet deep, on which an addition containing about 200 rooms, according to the number of stories, will be erected without the slightest interference with the usual business of the rest of the hotel. Modern elevator service in the new addition will naturally furnish service to each floor of the present structure. A six or seven or seven story addition on the site of the old stables, barn and sheds, but with a ten or twelve foot areaway between it and the side property-line, will insure an abundance of light and air to all rooms in the new addition.

The preparation of plans naturally cannot be rushed, but the work of getting everything in readiness for them can be, so that delays will be minimized.

WILLS EASILY BEATS NORFOLK

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

New York, March 3.—The delegation of volunteer pall-bearers gathered over the sad remains, and after some deliberation, arrived at a conclusion viz., to wit, and as follows:

That Harry Wills didn't hit Kid Norfolk at all.

That Kid Norfolk did what is ineleganlly known as a "flop."

Whatever the correct verdict may be, the bout proved nothing beyond the fact that Wills can beat Norfolk, and that undoubtedly there will be a black and white heavyweight championship fight between Wills and Jack Dempsey within a matter of months. The champion's next opponent, a matter about which the public has concerned itself no little, was produced, ready-made, last night.

No preliminary bally-hoo is necessary. On the strength of his record and the impressive manner of his victory last night, Wills has established himself as the best championship contender in sight.

SINCLAIR TO GET PLAYFELLOW'S PRICE BACK

By Telegraph to The Freeman

New York, March 3.—Local turf men have not yet recovered from the shock of the verdict in the supreme court, Brooklyn, whereby Harry F. Sinclair was awarded $100,000, the price he paid James Johnson for the colt, Playfellow, which is alleged to be a "wind-sucker." The thoroughbred, full brother of Man O'War, reverts to Johnson by the decision.

The appeal probably means that Playfellow will be prevented from racing this year.

LLOYD-GEORGE MAY RETIRE

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

London, March 3.—Premier Lloyd-George will present his resignation to King George on Wednesday unless he is assured of the undivided support of the coalition members of the house of commons, according to the Evening Standard today.

Certain Unionist leaders, notably Austin Chamberlain and A. J. Balfour, are making efforts to pacify the premier. Despite the fact that Mr. Lloyd-George is said to have placed a time limit upon his "ultimatum," to the Tory "die hards," some of the newspapers expressed opinion that the political situation was easier than it was yesterday afternoon when the Unionist leader decided to put a complete Tory platform in the field at the next general election.

It is reported that King George has already arranged to ask Austen Chamberlain to form a cabinet if Mr. Lloyd-George retires.

CENTRALS DEFEAT HOLY CROSS MIDGETS.

The Centrals defeated the Holy Cross Midgets in a fast and thrilling game at the latter's court on Pine Grove avenue Thursday evening. The game started off with the Centrals leading and their good floor work kept the Midgets guessing for most of the first half, which ended with the score 10-2. In the last half Sagendorf, of the Midgets, stirred up the ball, doing wonderful floor work. He made four pretty fields from the floor. Joyce scored most for the Centrals, making 7 points. Merrill's and Lebert's floor work for the Midgets passed the ball around to the players and thus to Sagendorf, who played a wonderful game in the second half, making half the points for the Midgets. CHURCH CALLS FOR PARENTS

But Fails to Speak When They Visit His Cell—Confessed Later, Says Jail Physician.

By Telegraph to The Freeman.

Chicago, March 3.—Harvey W. Church, convicted murderer, who will go to the gallows at 4 o'clock this afternoon today broke the self-imposed state of hypnotic catalepsy in which he has lain for more than five weeks, and spoke the first words he has uttered in that time.

While the hammers were pounding at the scaffold on which he will hang, he called for his father and mother. Later he confessed his crime, according to Dr. Francis W. McNamara, jail physician, and begged forgiveness.

An intensely dramatic scene ensued when Mr. and Mrs. E. O. Church, his aged parents, entered the death cell. Although he had called for them, Church did not speak while they were present. They kissed him goodbye after pleading for a final word, and left. In the jailer's office afterward, the mother collapsed, sobbing, and the father, jaws set and fingers working convulsively, paced the floor and proclaimed Harvey's innocence. He declared he would find the real slayer and convince the world that his son was not the murderer.

UNEASY RESTS HIS HEAD WHO RENTS

Estimated That at Least 75 to 100 Tenants Have Been Notified They Must Vacate April 1—Even Merchants Have to Move.

The housing situation is again growing acute in Kingston and from seventy-five to one hundred tenants have already received notice that they must find new quarters by April 1. Not only householders must move but at least ten of the local merchants have received a dispossess notice to vacate by the first of April.

City Marshal Arthur Rice has been kept busy the past week or so serving the dispossess notices and landlords have obtained the notices and served them personally on their tenants.

In some cases families who have resided for ten to fifteen years in a house have been notified that they must give up possession by the first of April. While in some cases the rents have again been boosted, some of the landlords desire possession of the property for other reasons.

The supply of vacant houses in the city is not exhausted, and those that are now vacant will undoubtedly be rented before the last of the month.

Unless those who have been notified to vacate do so at the appointed time the city marshal and other officials will be able to qualify as moving experts.

Sixteen horses perished and 1,000 bushels of grain and a quantity of hay were also burned. The college fire department aided by engines from Poughkeepsie fought the flames, but was unable to save the building. The loss is estimated at about $30,000. Cause of the fire is not known, but it is believed to have been spontaneous combustion.

All were made from his own ideas and he has never had any instruction.

FATHER BRIODY'S FUNERAL HELD

The funeral of the Rev. John H. Briody was held this morning with a solemn high Mass of requiem at St. Joseph's Roman Catholic Church of which he had been pastor for the past twelve years, and was attended by his friends from among every religious denomination of the city who filled the church to its capacity. Seats in the front of the altar were occupied by members of the Fourth Degree Assembly Knights of Columbus, who attended in a body and who, with members of the Holy Name Society, who also attended in a body, had maintained vigil over the remains of Father Briody from the time of his death. Many of the most prominent business and professional men of the city and public officials of the city and county, by all of whom Father Briody was highly esteemed, attended the services. Sisters of Charity and delegations of all the church societies also occupied seats in the main part of the edifice.

Holy Mass was celebrated by the Right Rev. Monsignor John T. Childwick, president of St. Joseph's Seminary at Dunwoodie, N. Y., formerly chaplain of the ill-fated battleship Maine, who was a classmate of Father Briody, with the Rev. Michael Duffy, pastor of St. Raphael's Church, New York City, as deacon, and the Rev. Francis Fisher of Mount St. Alphonsus, as sub-deacon. The Rev. Charles J. McCabe was master of ceremonies. The Right Rev. Monsignor John I. Dunn, auxiliary bishop of the archdiocese of New York, presided in the sanctuary with the Rev. John J. Hickey and the Very Rev. Florian R. Reichert as his attendants and gave absolution after the Mass.

Other priests within the sanctuary included the Right Rev. William Livingston of St. Gabriel's, New York City; the Right Rev. James Sheehan of Poughkepsie, the Right Rev. Joseph McMahon of Our Lady of Lourdes, New York City; the Rev. John P. Neumann and the Rev. Joseph D. Ostermann of St. Peter's, Kingston; the Rev. Francis Lesniewski of the Immaculate Conception, Kingston; the Rev. Thomas Corbett of the Holy Name, Wilbur; the Rev. Edward Higgins of St. Peter's, Rosendale; the Rev. Martin P. O'Gara of St. Joseph's, Kingston; the Rev. Henry A. Fitzgerald of Kingston; the Rev. Joseph Mannix of St. Mary's, Kingston; the Rev. Joseph Cushman of Saugerties; the Rev. James M. Kilroe of Clove; the Rev. George Vaeth of St. Ann's, Sawkill; the Rev. James S. Prendergast of Beacon, formerly of Wilbur; the Rev. John Duffy of St. Mary's, Kingston; the Rev. John Hopkins, Gardiner; the Rev. Joseph McCann, the Rev. Thomas Dunn and the Rev. Joseph Geis of Ellenville; the Rev. Peter W. Spellman of Stony Hollow; the Rev. John Moylan of Tivoli; the Rev. Joseph Scully of Phoenicia; the Rev. John De Krom, of the Benedictine Hospital, Kingston; the Rev. Thomas B. Brown of New York city, formerly assistant to Father Briody at St. Joseph's; the Rev. David O'Connor of East Kingston; the Rev. James O'Hara, Watertown; the Rev. Thomas Sanderson, the Rev. Gerald Murray and the Rev. Joseph Shaughnessy, of Mount St. Alphonsus, Esopus; the Rev. Father Gallagher and the Rev. Father Brosnan.

The master of ceremonies to the bishop was the Rev. Timothy Dugan, of the Church of the Annunciation, New York city.

The Mass was rendered by the full choir of the church, assisted by Thomas Dolan, tenor, and Carl Pierson, baritone. Miss Gertrude Reiser was at the organ. Miss Cusack sang "Thy Will be Done," following the Mass. At the close of the Mass and during the time the congregation was passing the bier, a children's choir of St. Joseph's School sang.

The panegyric was delivered by the Rev. Thomas O'Keefe, pastor of St. Benedict's Church, New York city, whose discourse, though brief, was scholarly and impressive. He spoke of "The Simple Priest," by which, he said, he did not mean a priest of simple talents or one whose simplicity prevented him from accomplishing great work, because such a definition did not correspond with the character of the priest who was about to be laid to rest. "The SimplePriest" was one whose heart was simple in its faith and whose work never was for his own glorification but rather for the glory of Jesus Christ. Such a priest was Father Briody, who had not labored to accomplish anything for himself but who had built and paid for a school which for generations would remain a monument not only to himself but to the cause of education and Catholic Christianity.

Within the walls of the school thus builded by Father Briody, generations yet unborn would be reared and educated to follow business and professional lives and they would be taught besides to be good citizens, good Americans and good Catholics, they would learn that to be unfaithful Americans was treason not only to their country but to their God and to their church.

For more than the thirty-four years of his priesthood, said Father O'Keefe, he had known Father Briody. He had known him as a boy, they had gone to school and through college and the Seminary together, and together they had been ordained to the priesthood. Every day of his life since his ordination to the priesthood, Father Briody in his daily life had remembered the solemn vows he had taken, and so well had he observed them that there was no doubt that a kind and just God was ready to welcome him when his labors on earth had ended. The life of such a man was an inspiration to everyone who knew him, to follow in his footsteps in their daily life, but most of all was it incumbent the high standards he had taught and followed so that when his Master called on him to account for his labors on earth, the men and women and boys and girls whom he had tried to lead in the right path would show by their own lives that his work had not been in vain.

Following the service, the casket was taken to Calvary Cemetery, on Long Island, on the New York Central train, and interment will take place there. The remains were accompanied by the New York City clergy who were present at the funeral and by members of his family, and also by the Rev. Father O'Gara, assistant pastor of St. Joseph's Church, and the Rev. Henry A. Fitzgerald of this city. Honorary pall bearers were Patrick Dempsey, Daniel J. Donovan, J. William Leary, Edward S. Loughran, Thomas J. Cusack, William Dugan and Martin Cashin. The active bearers were Thomas J. O'Hara, James A. Phelan, Vincent A. Gorman, John T. Loughran, Charles J. Mullen and David A. Freer.

Van Motor Co. Buys Pinover Property

City Sells it at Public Auction for $10,100, Subject to $12,000 in Mortgages, Bringing Price Up to $22,100—City Paid $18,500 Originally for it.

The Pinover property on central Broadway, adjoining the H. W. Palen plant, was sold at public auction this morning at the city hall by Corporation Counsel Walter N. Gill to the Van Motor Company for $10,100. There are two mortgages totaling $12,000, bringing total price for the property up to $22,-100. The city originally paid $18,-500 for the property which included the amount of the two mortgages.

This property was bought under the Caulfield administration in preparation for the proposed elimination of the Broadway crossing of the West Shore railroad. The property has several small stores located on the premises, and the Van Motor Company was one of the tenants. It has a frontage on Broadway of 159 feet. The city at the time it took possession paid in cash the sum of $6,500, which with the amount of the mortgages made the price $18,500.

The sale was to have been held in the city clerk's office, but due to the large number of those who attended the sale it was necessary to adjourn to the common council chambers.

The terms of the sale were read by Corporation Counsel Gill who stated that a mortgage for $9,000 was held by the Ulster County Savings Institution and a mortgage for $3,000 by Mrs. Fisher. The property was sold subject to the amount of the mortgages and the rights of the tenants. One of the leases on one of the stores does not expire until September 23, 1923.

The first bid for the property was that of Ex-Mayor W. D. Brinnier who started the ball rolling at $1,000. From that amount it gradually crept up to $4,000, and the bidding simmered down to bids made by Abram Handler and J. D. Schenck of the Van Motor Company.

Mr. Handler's last bid was for $10,000, and was topped by that of Mr. Schenck of an additional one hundred dollars.

Judging from the amount the property brought at the sale former Mayor Caulfield and the members of the purchasing committee of the common council used good judgment in buying the property for it was sold for $4,600 more than the city originally paid for it.

Under the terms of the sale the purchaser paid 25 per cent of the purchase price at the time the property was sold.

The Van Motor Company, which occupy some of the stores on the premises, will use the property to carry on the business.

LOST HIS PANTS BUT BEAT PONIES

A Havana Hotel Episode in Which Molyneaux Turned Joke on His Traveling Companions—Isle of Pines Gave Them Hearty Welcome.

In the issue of the Isle of Pines Appeal published at Nueva Gerona, Isle of Pines, on January 28, the following report of Senator Rice, Mr. Brinnier and Mr. Molyneaux's arrival appears. From the account it appears that the three men certainly enjoyed the time spent at Havana while enroute to the Isle of Pines as well as their stay at Mr. Brinnier's plantation on the Isle of Pines:

"Tuesday a steamer brought a trio of New York distinguished business men and politicians for several weeks of recreation among the green mountains and in the joyous spots of conviviality found on the Isle of Pines.

Senator Jacob Rice, Elmer E. Molyneaux and Judge William D. Brinnier will enjoy island sunshine and hospitality until March first, the three gentlemen stopping at the beautiful Brinnier winter home on the Casas river.

Senator Rice has been a member of the New York state senate for six years, and for five years previous was a member of the state assembly. He is the head of the shipping concern of Jacob Rice & Son with offices at 25 Broadway, New York, who operate a fleet of fifty barges in the harbor of the American metropolis. The senator's home is in Kingston, N. Y.

Elmer E. Molyneaux is prominent in the automobile business in Kingston, his firm controlling the Cadillac and Nash agencies for that city.

Judge Brinnier who is well known on the island, (and who is of international fame as the importer of the famous Patagonian crimson hen presented to A. E. Willis last winter) makes the third member of the party. The judge has been making the Isle of Pines his winter home for many seasons, although for some inconceivable reason he chooses to suffer several months of the year in Kingston, N. Y.

The trio of gentlemen suffered some grief in Havana, so the story goes. It seems that while stopping at the Sevilla, Senator Rice and Mr. Molyneaux occupied one room, while Mr. Brinnier and Mr. Torsdorf occupied another. Somehow during the night, Mr. Molyneaux's pants disappeared with his wallet. In the morning, despair in his heart, he applied to the housekeeper for relief but in reply to his tearful and strenuous demands and pleadings for justice and retribution the hard hearted and sophisticated ruler of the upper tiers of the palatial hostelry informed him that he should have placed his trousers, wallet and all, in the safe of the hotel.

Necessity, it is said, is the mother of invention or idea, as it may be, so Mr. Molyneaux conceived the bright idea of acquiring a pair of his friends' trousers, rather than request the cruel housekeeper for the loan of a pair of his (or hers).

The thought was father to the deed, and so arrayed in borrowed nether plumage, Mr. Molyneaux was partially satisfied, having appropriated Judge Brinnier's pants.

They were evidently winners, for that day Mr. Molyneaux won a forty to two shot at the race track.

Seeing their unholy plot foiled by the good fortune attending the Brinnier pants, the conspirators, Messrs. Rice nad Brinnier, declared that the joke was more on themselves than on Mr. Molyneaux, so they turned over to that gentleman his missing trousers and humbly begged him to return the lucky garment to the chastened judge and senator.

Nevertheless, all joking aside, it is to be assured that Senator Rice, Judge Brinnier and Mr. Molyneaux, will spend a happy time on the Isle of Pines. Everyone wishes them a hearty welcome."

Altogether since March 4, 1921, President Harding has extended executive clemency in more than 300 cases or almost at the rate of one a day. In his first year in the White House, the president has denied appeals for clemency in 153 cases.

GAY VELVET ROBES

Fabric Is Most Fascinating and Beautiful for Garment.

Material Is Dyed in Interesting Colors, the Paler Shades Used for Underclothes.

Bathrobes and negligees partake of the general simplicity and colorfulness of their sisters, the chemises and nightrobes. Some very fascinating robes are seen, which, when held in the hands, look like so many strips of straight material, when gathered about the shoulders take on stunning shapes. Velvet is one of the most satisfactory and beautiful of the materials used for these robes, for this fabric has such a becoming way of wrapping itself around a woman's figure. Then, velvet is dyed in such interesting colors—the octave of the paler shades used for the underclothes. They are becoming robes, and the more so because they are so perfect in their simplicity.

An especially interesting robe is made from three pieces of velvet. The two side pieces are almost exactly square; and then in the back there is a three-cornered piece for an insert to hold the other two sections together and to send them draping interestingly toward the sides. The sleeves are made by cutting holes in the middle of each side section, and then the loose edges and the whole length of the front are bound with puffy white ermine.

Some of the lounging robes, made of heavy brocaded satins combined with three wide mesh lace and a good deal of chiffon, are lovely things to wear and in which to look beautiful with the lightest possible trouble and attention to details. They are so wrappy and so loose in their lines that any way they may be held about one turns out to be the right way. Sleeves are things used entirely according to taste, for they may be there or not, just as one chooses. The whole point seems to be to have the color gorgeous and the material rich and heavy, so that the draping will be as sumptuous as possible.

The bathrobes and lounging robes follow, more or less, the lines of the coats, wraps of the present day. They are ample with regard to the material used. They are flowing and graceful in line, they cover the whole of the figure, with no part left to face the cold uncovered, but they have no particular standard shape to call their own. Each one is a creation in itself though so unaffected and simple in principle and origin.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

Smart new blouses are of dimity, trimmed with gingham.

The favorite house dresses are made of percales and plain or checked ginghams.

In spite of the fun that has been poked at them, low-heeled pumps have come in for more favor than ever before.

Trimming on the new spring coats and wraps is decidedly varied, braids and embroideries being much used, with applique work also favored.

The skirt that is seven to nine inches from the ground is short enough for comfort, and that seems to be the generally approved length.

Hats with medium-sized crowns, fashioned to fit the head snugly, and brims of medium width, are two of the style recommendations for spring, and the brim that is narrower in the back than in the front promises to be very popular.

Measures Cylindrical Surfaces.

With a new micrometer internal cylindrical surfaces can be measured to the ten-thousandth of an inch.

Black Bread Good for Teeth.

TIME TO CALL A HALT.

Feeding Europe has been one of the great American customs for several years past, and hardly a month now passes without an appeal being issued to feed Russia, or some other section of the old world. There have been drives innumerable to raise funds to buy barrels of flour and other food products to send to the relief of other countries.

The fact that famine stalks through the lands of the old world is regrettable, but it is time to call a halt to the relief drives. The war is over, and it is time that Europe awoke to the fact that America is getting tired of being forever cast in the role of Santa Claus.

It is time that some of the efforts and money expended abroad were directed towards the relief of conditions at home. The mere fact that Russia through its own efforts is threatened with famine is no reason why we should feel it necessary to fly to its relief. That applies to every nation that seems to labor under the impression that all that is necessary is to issue an appeal and America will respond.

From a sentimental standpoint there are those who will throw up their hands in horror when any one dares to raise any objection to feeding Europe. Undoubtedly there is need of sending relief to some of the starving peoples of the old world, but it should also be strongly impressed on the governing classes that America is growing weary of furnishing the old world's dining table, and that it is time that some real effort was made toward alleviating conditions.

FOR POLITICAL EFFECT.

"Come, Washington," cries Senator Reed, "and tell why you cried to God to break the tyrant's sword. Was it for this, that at the end of 150 years a duly accredited envoy of the country you established should stand on British soil, beneath the very flag you forced Cornwallis to haul down, and declare for a union, one and inseparable, of America and the British empire?" If Washington could have responded to this call, he could have told of some other things even more interesting just at present, including the violent charge of politicians that he completely surrendered to Great Britain in the treaty of 1794. He could have told how, when amicable relations with a former enemy were formally agreed to, he was denounced for sacrificing in diplomacy all that he had won in war. Which was, of course, all nonsense—the mere artificial creation of politicians for political effect.

Senator Reed has a similar object, and while he strikes a tragic pose he is thinking merely of voters in Missouri who are afflicted with anglophobia. Ambassador Harvey is not very happy in his choice of illustration. He compared President Harding to an elephant recently, and in a melting mood he might be quite equal to a picture of England and America as two sucking doves, happily billing and cooing. But as a matter of facts he merely exploded the hope of lasting peace and friendship between the two great English-speaking peoples. Mr. Harvey has been open to criticism more than once, but he is well aware, and properly so, that he was not sent to England to twist the lion's tail merely in order to gratify the constituents of Senator Reed.

PIRATE, NOT PUGILIST.

Speaking with all the majesty of a German army officer who married Bertha, the Cannon Queen, and thus in a second-hand manner became Lord of the Essen big gun factory, Herr Krupp von Bohlen makes proclamation that Americans are unsportsmanslike. According to this eminent and unprejudiced person, Americans are lacking in the spirit of fair play, or they never would have entered the World War. His expressed view is thus summarized: "He sees Germany as a pugilist who had met and conquered one strong opponent, and then without any chance to rest or catch his breath, had to meet another as vigorous coming fresh to the encounter. Again victory was won, but a third fighter at once appeared, strong and in the very pink of condition, and naturally the weary champion, after a last desperate struggle, was incapable of further resistance."

Naturally that is a popular view among Germans, but it is an utterly false view because it takes no account of the character and announced aims of the finally overwhelmed "pugilist." He could not be granted a sporting right because he was not a sportsman himself. He was a predatory enemy of mankind, a highwayman, a pirate, who struck below the belt with poison gas on land and shamelessly murdered innocent noncombatants at sea. He might even be characterized as a mad dog running amuck and thus demanding united effort toward his destruction. Though less immediately than Europe, the United States also was endangered by German militarists seeking world empire, even promising Mexico the return of her "lost provinces" for aid in case of need. Bertha Krupp's husband, if honest, sees Germany not as she was but through a mist of idealism.

Answers To Previous Questions.

1. Do crabs live in holes in the sand?

The fiddler crab does, choosing muddy banks a little above the tide line. These holes or burrows are dug out with the aid of the walking legs, and the mud scraped into little pellets, is carried quite a distance from the hole. When the crab comes out of his hole, he first puts his big claw out but in retreating, he drags that claw in last. The burrow is used as a retreat at the slightest alarm.

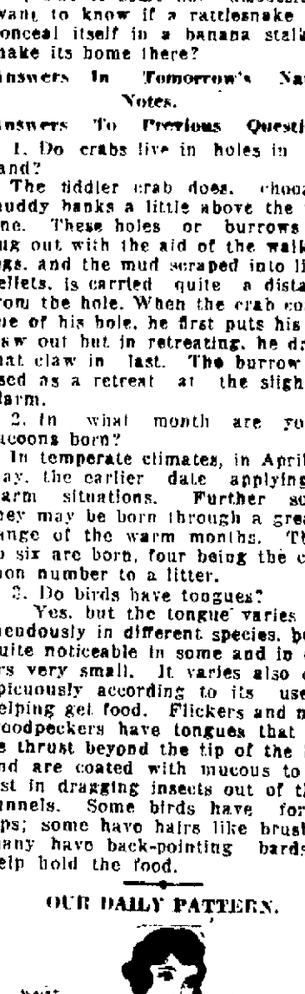

2. In what month are young racoons born?

In temperate climates, in April or May, the earlier date applying to warm situations. Further south they may be born through a greater range of the warm months. Three to six are born, four being the common number to a litter.

3. Do birds have tongues?

Yes, but the tongue varies tremendously in different species, being quite noticeable in some and in others very small. It varies also conspicuously according to its use in helping get food. Flickers and most woodpeckers have tongues that can be thrust beyond the tip of the bill, and are coated with mucous to assist in dragging insects out of their tunnels. Some birds have forked tips; some have hairs like brushes; many have back-pointing barbs to help hold the food.

OUR DAILY PATTERN.

A Smart Style For A Day Dress.

This portrays a charming development of waist pattern 3728 and skirt 3725. As here shown serge was used, with applied trimming of satin. Braid stitching or embroidery would be equally pleasing. The waist is cut in 6 sizes: 34, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust measure. The skirt is 7 sizes: 26, 28, 30, 32, 34, 36 and 38 inches waist measure. To make the dress for a 36 inch size will require 5½ yards of 38 inch material. The width of the skirt at the foot is about 2⅛ yards.

Poiret twill, plaid suiting, broadcloth, taffeta, satin, moire, gabardine and velveteen are attractive for this design.

This illustration calls for two separate patterns which will be mailed to any address on receipt of 12 cents for each pattern in coin or stamps by the Pattern Department, The Freeman, Roudout, N. Y. Be sure to state size wanted.

Lacking Human Sympathy.

Most of us have come across people, otherwise good, but lacking entirely in the softer human qualities. They are austere, feelingless, hard, utterly devoid of sympathy. And, all because they have been denied that gift of affection when they were in the molding. Statistics prove that children from institutions are sadly lacking in affection. It is one of the greatest problems social workers must deal with.—Exchange.

Raise 'em The FUL-O-PEP Way

The Ful-O-Pep Way of Feeding chicks has changed the old expensive "grain feeding way" and has proven to poultry raisers that the old method of grain feeding is all wrong. The Ful-O-Pep Way of feeding instead of only 1 pound of gain to each 4 pounds of feed, which is the basis of figuring cost of production arrived at by experiment stations covering several years experiments with grain feeding. Why continue to feed this old expensive way when the Ful-O-Pep Way will give you the same gains with only half the feed?

FUL-O-PEP GROWING MASH

Cost Less Per Pounds of Gain Made than Any Other Feed

The Ful-O-Pep Way consists of feeding Ful-O-Pep Growing Mash from the very start—continuously keeping it before your birds all the time. Ful-O-Pep Growing Mash, because of the high feeding value of its Oatmeal, fish and bone contents goes twice as far as grain feeds—every ounce is digested by chicks delicate digestive organs—there is no waste and when compared with results costs only half as much in pounds of feed consumed for gains in pounds of meat produced. Furthermore, your losses from bowel and digestive troubles that arise from feeding hard indigestible grains, will be very much less and your flock will be of even growth and development. Give the Ful-O-Pep Way a trial this season — it will reduce your feed costs and materially increase your profits.

AN INTERESTING D. A. R. MEETING

The March meeting of Wiltwyck Chapter, D. A. R. proved to be exceptionally interesting as the program for the afternoon was devoted to the subject of Colonial needlework, especially samplers.

During the business session, two new members were taken into the Chapter, Mrs. F. D. Patterson and Miss Elizabeth Hill. The Chapter voted to assist the American Legion in its effort to establish a camp for disabled soldiers at Tupper Lake in the Adirondacks.

The program for the afternoon was in charge of the Misses Marie Antoinette DuBois and Miss Mary Jansen DuBois, and, as stated above, was devoted to the subject of Colonial Needlework. The Misses DuBois had gathered together a really notable collection of old, but handsome "samplers," with one truly Colonial one, and these were exhibited in the board room. The largest number of especially handsome specimens were loaned by Miss Alice Van Gaasbeek and Miss Forsyth, while others who contributed to the exhibition were Miss Van Santvoord, Mrs. Darrow, Mrs. Finch, Mr. Gibson, Mrs. Herzog, Mrs. John Brodhead, Mrs. Van Buren, Miss Mary C. DeWitt, Mrs. Billings, Mrs. Lawton, Mrs. Brooks, Miss Helen Webster, Miss Freer, Miss Emily Hoysradt and the Misses DuBois themselves.

The program opened with a paper on "Colonial Needlework," given by Miss Mary Jansen DuBois, full of charm, historic fact and humorous sketch. It will appear in a later issue of The Freeman.

At the close of the paper Miss Marie Antoinette DuBois gave bits of exceedingly entertaining history about different ones of the samplers, the earliest of which exhibited was made by Sally Kiersted in 1771.

There was a beautiful one of the 1830 period, loaned by Miss Alice Van Gaasbeek, and which was made at Miss Tupper's School, which was where the Burgevin flower store now stands, at the corner of Main and Fair streets.

Two of the samplers made by the late Eliza Van Gasbeek and Mrs. Griffiths were very elaborate, showing the First Dutch Church, parsonage and baptismal house, the pastor and his dog, etc., etc. Another noteworthy one was loaned by Mrs. Finch. This was made at Miss Elmendorf's School on Green street. Then there were several embroidered pictures. Miss DuBois also gave a number of "Sampler Verses," both to be found on the loaned specimens and on others to be found in the county, etc., and they were positively humorous in their lugubriousness.

After the program, Mrs. Edgar Powley and Mrs. Lebert acted as hostesses and coffee and home-made cake were served.

An oral will made by Chester C. Minard, giving his $10,000 war insurance to his aunt, Mrs. Catherine Wells of Poughkeepsie was upheld by Surrogate Daniel J. Gleason, who admitted it to probate. EASILY WON THE NOMINATION

Dr. W. J. McGregor of Wilkinsburg, Pa., Has No Legs, but Made Fast Run for Office.

The loss of both his legs in the service of his country did not deter Dr. W. J. McGregor, Wilkinsburg, Pa., from entering a hot political fight against opponents who had sturdy limbs and knew how to use them. He won the nomination for coroner of his county by a majority of 50,000.

Doctor McGregor, a first lieutenant in the medical corps, went overseas for duty in July, 1917, serving with the British in a general hospital at Manchester, England. Later he went to France with a machine-gun battalion of the British Second division and in the action before Albert in March, 1918, lost both his legs when a big German shell exploded near him. Doctor McGregor is a member of Wilkinsburg-Edgewood post of the Legion.

MANY WOUNDS, HAS NERVE

Frank Schrepfer Wins First Prize in School of Landscape Architecture at Harvard.

Wounds received under heavy fire in the Argonne forest shattered everything but the nerve of Frank H. Schrepfer, Chicago. In spite of the fact that he is partially blind and that he has the use of only one arm, he has established an excellent record in the graduate school of landscape architecture at Harvard, and has outstripped his associates by winning first prize in the general class competition.

Schrepfer was admitted to the school only after repeated efforts on the part of the Veterans' bureau, as it was believed his disabilities would prove too great a handicap. But the spirit of come-back which he displayed in aspiring to a profession in spite of apparently insurmountable obstacles, coupled with his talent, soon made his place secure.

VETERANS SUFFER FROM COLD

Measure Offered to Provide Shivering Men With Clothing Now Being Eaten by Moths.

War veterans are suffering from the cold in the very shadow of warehouses where vast quantities of surplus army clothing lie idle. This anomolous condition will be righted if a bill favorably reported in the house by the military affairs committee is passed.

The bill authorizes the secretary of war to co-operate with the surgeon general in providing all disabled veterans under care in government hospitals and institutions with adequate clothing and equipment. Thousands of dollars' worth of this material is now stored away, inviting moths, while thousands of former soldiers are shivering from exposure

House leaders have demanded a special rule for consideration of the measure. Statements were made on the floor that if congress could rush through an appropriation of $20,000,000 for starving Russians, it ought to be able to put through a simple bill to help cold service men.

Carrying On With the American Legion

American army officers are now holding rank one to two notches higher than they did under the army organization before the World war.

* * *

Chauncey M. Depew has asked for his war medal. The American Legion found, however, that he is only named for the after dinner speaker of fame.

* * *

When Pvt. Edward U. Canoose of the American forces stationed in Coblenz received 683 love letters, postcards, etc. in a batch, he took a week's leave.

* * *

The French admired the box-like motor trucks introduced by the A. E. F. and ordered 20,000 more. The ones they are now using are a part of the huge mass of war material bought from the army by the French government.

* * *

* * *

Harvard university sent 11,386 men into the World war. Of the number 1,014 received decorations, and 317 were cited in orders. Two graduates, the late Lieutenant Colonel Whittlesey, and Maj. George G. McMurty, Jr., received the Congressional Medal of Honor. Eighty-two won the American Distinguished Service Cross.

TO SUCCEED IN BUSINESS

According to Lord Beaverbrook, There Are Sure and Certain Rules That Must Be Observed.

Young business men received sound advice in an address given by Lord Beaverbrook recently on "The Making of a Merchant."

"Some people," he said, "start life by asking themselves whether they would rather be head of a small business of their own or take a much more subordinate position in a big business, with the hope of rising to the top.

"My answer is that it does not matter. The right sort of man will rise to the top of a big business, but he will also make a small business into a big one.

"All that is necessary is the capacity and determination to dominate the business, big or small. In either case, success depends upon concentration.

"There are sure and certain rules that we should lay down for the guidance of the young men who will follow after us in business:

"Never accept a job because it offers a safe salary. Think first whether it will lead to anything. An able man will choose a position that will give free rein to opportunity.

"Be loyal to your firm. Speak well of your firm and you will end by thinking well of it. Otherwise you may damage your firm and ruin yourself.

"Do not grumble too much. If you do, your master will get tired of your persistent pessimism. He will think you are too busy with your grievances to think about your business.

"Never say 'It is not my job.' If you are wrong, it is inexcusable; if you are right, it is intolerable.

"Do not do your job because you fear dismissal. Such a man should be sacked at once. The only place for him is in the south sea islands, where no one wears clothes and food grows on the trees.

"These may be hard sayings," continued Lord Beaverbrook, "but the road to success is hard. In exchanging the role of employee for that of employer a man only shifts the burden from one shoulder to the other. Nobody will have a good time until he retires and then he will regret his loss of power."

Interesting Archeological Finds.

An archeological find has been made behind a boarding in Fetter lane, off Fleet street, London, England, in a vacant plot of ground which is being excavated by a mining engineer in his spare time. Week by week he is adding to his relics of Roman and medieval London. One of his finds is a beautiful Greek brooch of finely worked gold, which may be the key to the knowledge of an unknown Greek civilization in England before the Roman occupation, has been found in the pit. Many other discoveries, while of less historical value, are of great interest. One of the most unusual is a Roman brick which bears the print of the paws of an animal which must have walked across it while the clay was still wet. Another relic is a mussel shell with paint in it, evidently for the use of an artist. This dates back to medieval and it is interesting to note that gold paint is still sold by artists colormen in mussel shells. The handle of a medieval handbag, carried probably by a scottish person many hundreds of years ago; a large lump of cobalt blue enamel bearing the impress of two seals, which was probably used by monks for enameling work; and a clay tile with the Tudor rose upon it have also been found.

PET DOVE A FIGHTER

With Wing Broken, Was Found in Field by Farmer.

John Burton of Carbon Hill, Ala., has a unique pet, a turtle dove, which he found in his field sometime ago with a broken wing and befriended.

The bird was the victim of a hunter's shot. John took the wounded bird to his home and gave it the best of attention and it is now well and able to fly, but has not shown any inclination to leave its benefactor; in fact, it is a great pet.

Burton named the bird "Pete," and when he calls for Pete the said Pete flies down and lights on his shoulder. Pete roosts with Burton's pigeons, and the pigeons cuddle around while the wing was broken, but the dove is now the boss and will not let a pigeon roost close to it, Burton says.

Talking Movies in Japan.

If there were not already sure signs of the popularity of the films in China, it would not be difficult to foretell such popularity from the attitude of the kindred Japanese. In Japan the photoplay has come, been seen, and has conquered. It is all popular, and at absurdly low prices Japanese of all classes crowd into moving picture theaters and watch with equal pleasure and enthusiasm either foreign or Japanese films. They have in fact developed the talking movie in that the part of every player in a Japanese screen play is taken by actors, placed in boxes on either side of the screen who in life-like tones and to the accompaniment of native music speak the parts of the characters as they would on the legitimate stage. As the Japanese fights, these scenes are given added zest by the cries and shouts of the combatants.

Santa Barbara Adobes.

One old picturesque Spanish abode of Santa Barbara is to be restored just as it used to be in the days of the Spaniards; this is the de la Guerra mansion on the street of its name which is in the very heart of the city. La Casa de la Guerra was erected by Don Jose de la Guerra y Noriega in 1818.

This edifice is to be surrounded by a new group of adobes of the early Spanish type so arranged, along with an alteration of the de la Guerra house to its historic position, as to reproduce an old whaling lane such as predominate in Spanish cities and such as were formerly seen in Santa Barbara.

Doctrine of Reincarnation.

The doctrine of a previous existence being made manifest to the individual is very old, and certain sects, especially in the Far East, believe that man experiences many incarnations, carrying the memory to a greater or less degree from one incarnation to the other. Theological writers have taken up this strange state of feeling as an evidence that our mentality had an existence before our present bodily life—souls being created from the beginning.

Change of Trade.

Some years ago a cotton man inquired at a large bank regarding his note, which the bank held for a sizable amount. "Yes," remarked an officer, "it falls due tomorrow, and we expect it will be paid." The cotton man made no reply for a moment, then asked abruptly, "What is your business?" "Why, I am a banker," was the surprised response. "Well," mused the cotton man, "tomorrow you are going to be a cotton merchant."—New York Times.

Leprosy Not Fully Understood.

Leprosy is still somewhat of a puzzle to medical science, and the means by which it is spread has never been satisfactorily determined. The housefly is suspected of occasional agency in the matter, but the case against that insect has never been proved. In a considerable majority of cases studied personal contact with lepers seemed unquestionably to be accountable for the infection.

Maple Is Much Used.

Makers of croquet sets use more maple than any other wood; but the mallet heads of fine sets may be lignum-vitae or teak; and the mallet handles may be of beech and birch as well as of maple, says the American Forestry Magazine of Washington. The balls wear out sooner than the other parts of the outfit. They gradually go to pieces by splitting, chips at a time.

No Advocate but Itself.

Do not waste a minute, not a second, in trying to demonstrate to others the merit of your own performance. If your work does not vindicate itself, you cannot vindicate it, but you can labor steadily on to the something which needs no advocate but itself.—Thomas Wentworth Higginson, "A Letter to a Young Contributor."

Fine Place to Explore.

Arabia contains possibly the greatest tract of unexplored territory now existing in the world. According to one authority, no European traveler has penetrated more than a hundred miles from the coast, except at one or two points, in the vast southern half of the peninsula, where about 750,000 miles of territory (largely desert) remain unexplored.—Outlook.

First American Postal System.

The first successful postal system established in any of the American colonies was that of William Penn who, in 1683, appointed Henry Waldy of Tekonay, to keep a post and "supply passengers with horses from Philadelphia to Newcastle or the Falls of the Delaware."

Poison Obtained From Dead.

The favorite poison used by the Australian bushmen in warfare is obtained from certain portions of a putrefying corpse. It is said that a man wounded with a war-shaft poisoned with this awful venom dies of lockjaw almost immediately.

Heat in City.

In the city the sun's rays hit the sidewalk and bound back in your face. If there are no trees or grass around to absorb some of the heat, the temperature is several degrees higher than in the country.

Lives to Be Remembered.

To be as good as our fathers, we must be better. Imitation is not discipleship. When someone sent a cracked plate to China to have a set made, every piece in the new set had a crack in it.—Wendell Phillips.

Convict's Unhappy Knowledge.

The philosophers worry about the relations between space and time, but the convict doesn't. He knows that he is doing a large amount of time in a limited amount of space.

Jud Tunkins.

Jud Tunkins says he can't understand why some people think it's any kind of a comfort to explain to a man that his troubles are his own fault.

Some drivers of cars not equipped with Willard Batteries think they ought to go to the service station that sold the battery. Not at all!

The safest rule is to go to the place that gives you the best attention, has the most skilled workmen and seems to be most on the job—the place that deserves the title of "Battery Headquarters".

That's the kind of battery station we have always run and always expect to run.

THE OFFICE CAT

By Jordan

When The Paper Doesn't Come.

My neighbor says our paper is never put up right,
He finds a lot of fault, you know perusing it all night.
He says there ain't a single thing in it worth while to read,
And it doesn't print the kind of stuff the people really need.
He tosses it aside and says it's strictly on the bum,
But you ought to hear him holler When the paper doesn't come.

He reads about the wedding with the most derising shout,
He says the Office Cat is just pure bunk, without a doubt
He says they make the papers for the women folks alone,
He'll read about the parties and He'll fret and fume and groan,
He says of information it doesn't have a crumb
But you ought to hear him holler When the paper doesn't come.

He's always first to grab it and he reads it plumb, clean through,
He doesn't miss an item or a want ad, that is true,
He says, "They don't know what we want them durn newspaper guys,
I'm gonna to take a day some time an' go an' put 'em wise,
Sometimes it seems as though they must be deaf and blind and dumb,
But you ought to hear him holler When the paper doesn't come.

BEATA M. SERVICE AT WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Mar. 2. The Rev. W. S. Maggs, the conference evangelist, with John Stather his singer, held a week's meeting in the M. E. Church. Mr. Maggs is a fine gospel preacher holding his audiences in his grasp from start to finish and with he singer sang many solos and duets. In addition to this there was formed a male quartet composed of the Rev. J. H. Lincoln, first tenor; Harold Seigle, second tenor; John Bailey, first bass, and John Stather, second bass. This quartet sang every night and was one of the big attractions for the meetings. Not only did they sing at the church services but the Rev. Lincoln took the quartet to the district school in the cherry during the day and sang for the shut-ins which was appreciated by a dozen homes where they visited. Sunday, February 26, was a great day for the church, service in the church at Woodstock in the morning, in the afternoon at Willow, with full quartet, Mr Maggs as preacher, Woodstock at night and the church was filled to the doors with an audience coming from Shady, Wittenberg and West Hurley. The Shady choir sang one selection which was greatly enjoyed. An invitation was extended the Rev. Mr. Maggs to come and conduct another service some time in the future. Some twenty of our young people lined up at the altar thus taking a public stand for the master. The Rev. Mr. Lincoln, the pastor, is looking after the class for church instruction as they will be received on probation before a conference. Good congregations at every service. The church was helped and there ought to be lasting results.

Come to Think of It.

A man was describing to a woman the compensations of nature—how in the blind the feeling of touch was acute; how those who were deaf in one ear often heard clearly with the other, and how a person blinded in one eye often sees extra well with the sound eye. "Yes," said she, "it's remarkable. And, come to think of it, I have always noticed that if a person has one short leg the other is always longer."

IS YOUR CHILD SICK AND AILING?

Give It Gude's Pepto-Mangan—For Thirty Years Doctors' Favorite Tonic.

Children that grow too fast and play too hard or perhaps work too hard at school (oh, yes, some children do work hard at school) become pale and a little run-down. And then mothers and fathers become worried about them. The youngsters do not eat with their usual hearty appetites, and so they become thin and tire out easily. There is a simple and good remedy for this. It is Gude's Pepto-Mangan, the tonic rich in a certain form of iron that is readily absorbed by the system. Gude's Pepto-Mangan will soon put the color back into the children's cheeks and give them the kind of an appetite every mother loves to see. It is sold by druggists in two forms, liquid and tablets—and is absolutely safe to give to any child. Ask your home doctor what he thinks about Gude's Pepto-Mangan.—Advertisement.

SPARE THE RINSING AND SPOIL THE CLOTHES

No matter how carefully you have washed your clothes, if you have not rinsed every bit of soap out, they will still be yellow. Use a soap that dissolves completely and there is less danger of particles sticking to the clothes to yellow them.

Rinso is an entirely new kind of soap that dissolves instantly, making both water and clothes slippery with its pure, rich suds. It soaks all the dirt out of the clothes so that no hard rubbing is needed to get them spotlessly clean.

Rinso is easier to rinse out than a soap with solid particles to stick to the fabric. But because the rich Rinso suds loosen every bit of dirt, very thorough rinsing is necessary to carry off the dirt.

TWO CONFERENCES FOR HOME-MAKERS

A home-makers' conference will be held in connection with the Farm and Home Bureau institute at Shawangung Hall at Shawangunk, on Friday, March, and at Grange Hall at Plattekill, on Saturday, March 4.

The home-makers conference at Shawangunk will be in charge of Mrs. Joseph I. Furman and at Plattekill will be in charge of Mrs. Frank Lozier. Each conference will begin at 2 o'clock in the afternoon, and at each Miss Jennie C. Fisher, home demonstration agent for Ulster county, will speak on the Home Bureau Program, and Miss Dora L. Earle of Ithaca will speak on Labor Saving Devices, with special reference to kitchen arrangement, which will enable the housekeeper to save steps and time while performing the innumerable duties which keep her in that part of the house for so much of the day.

These are the last of ten institutes held in the county this past month. That these conferences have actually been of help to the women has been shown by the active interest they have taken in the discussion. In some communities the groups have taken a kitchen and its equipment and together planned a more convenient arrangement for the equipment. Another community expressed a desire to take up this study of household management and worked out a program for such a study. The following are some of the subjects they would like to know more about: House planning, and furnishing; arrangement kitchen equipment, discussion of utensils; different kinds of water, lighting and heating systems; labor savers of special interest and ways of doing housework. In connection with this last subject they are planning to have different members discuss their own way of doing their housework, and by doing this they hope to receive many helpful suggestions from each other.

Meetings Next Week.

Miss Bertha Kingsbury, state health nurse under the supervision of Dr. Laidlaw, will meet the women of various communities next week as follows:

Monday, March 6, New Hurley.
Tuesday, March 7, Shawangunk.

A nutrition specialist from the state college will direct discussion at meetings to be held at Hurley on the afternoon of Thursday, March 9; Mt. Marion on the afternoon of Friday, March 10, and West Hurley on that evening.

TO WEAR COTTONS

Material in New Form Is Supplied by Manufacturers.

Fabric Closely Resembles Georgette Crepe and Crepe de Chine; Woven Embroidered Patterns.

The cotton dress is to renew its popularity, writes a Paris fashion correspondent. Its re-entry as a really fashionable costume has been prepared for by manufacturers of cotton fabrics who have brought out cotton crepes and other sheer materials so beautifully woven that they closely resemble georgette crepe and crepe de chine. White cottons have woven embroidered patterns.

Rodier, the well-known French manufacturer of cotton and wool materials, is featuring for 1922 cotton crepes, voiles, piques, batistes and linen embroidered either in matching or contrasting colors. A white material may carry an embroidered pattern in several colors. An example is one of his most interesting fabrics, white organdina—a fine cotton crepe which has a floral design worked out in three different threads. The flowers are embroidered in colors, the stems in black and the leaves in gold thread. The use of black threads intermingled in colored designs is one of Rodier's most frequent combinations.

Swiss muslin, with its shower of dots, is always a favorite with the American woman, although made little of by the Parisienne. It has lost none of its prestige in this country, and we see it in myriads of wonderful shades ranging from pale grays and mauves to the brightest greens, blues and reds. There are dots of all sizes, but the medium and small-sized dots promise to find greatest favor.

The colors introduced into organdies were taken from the silk color card. The shades are so wonderfully produced that it is difficult to imagine them in a cotton material—rather do they give the appearance of thin silks. This is especially true of the stamped organdies, which may be procured in floral, geometrical and block designs. Those in floral patterns are reminiscent of old-fashioned silk damasks.

LATEST IN EVENING GOWNS

This new evening gown of white lace over white crepe shows the modern interpretation of the hoop skirt as it will be worn the coming season. The bodice is of white baronette, with brocade in pastel shades.

FASHIONS IN BRIEF

Spanish lace is one of the important accessories as well as metal laces.

The new leg o' mutton sleeves differ from the old-time ones in that there is no extra fullness on the upper arm.

Many of the new hats show but little trimming, a gracefully and becomingly draped veil being all that is required.

Some advance season blouse models are of crepe de chine, in such colors as orchid, peach, maize, dahlia, etc., with half-inch checks in white.

Many blouses that are only waist length are finished at the waistline so that they may be worn over the skirt without a separate belt or girdle.

There are all sorts of interesting girdle ornaments. There are clasps of wrought silver or gold inlaid with stones. These are attached to the ends of wide metallic ribbon that forms the girdles that are placed right about the hips on many evening and afternoon frocks.

Keep Coal Dry.

If coal is kept in a dry, airy place it will burn much better than if placed in a close, poorly ventilated cellar. Coal that is excluded from the air soon gets rid of its gas and the absence of this renders it more wasteful when burned.

AT END OF RESOURCES

Colonies of Ukrainian Jews in Pressing Need of Help.

Colonies of Jewish agriculturists established more than a hundred years ago in the Ukraine face extinction unless immediate relief is received, according to cablegrams received in New York by the joint distribution committee, which disburses in Europe the funds raised in America. Fifty thousand dollars has been appropriated from the American Jewish contributions, but this amount is entirely inadequate to the need. The fate of the colonists rests largely upon the success of the appeal for $14,000,000 now being made by the American Jewish relief committee to aid the Jewish population of eastern Europe, whose condition is no less desperate than that of the Russians in the heart of the famine area, according to reports.

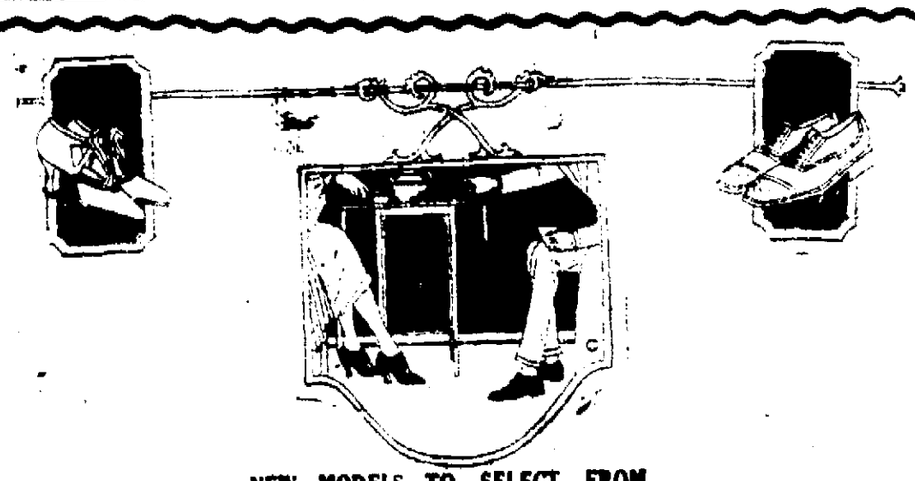

The colonies are in the governments of Kherson and Yekaterinoslav, and comprise 36 villages, with a population of upward of 150,000 people, who own an area of 125,000 acres. These colonies were founded early in the Nineteenth century and have served as agricultural schools for the Jewish population of southern Russia.

During 1918 and 1919 the colonists suffered severely in the pogroms, and in some colonies almost the entire population were killed and their estates plundered.

Agriculturists who have recently visited the colonies report that all of them except two, Nogaitova and Rovianoska, have no grain and no hay. Famine is spreading rapidly and many colonists have fled.

Name Chattanooga.

That city was originally known as Ross' Landing, the name being changed to Chattanooga in 1851. The name is Tsafanugi in the Cherokee Indian language and its meaning is unknown, according to the Bureau of American Ethnology in their "Handbook of American Indians."

RATS MENACE BUDAPEST

Rodents From Russia Overrun City—Encouraged by Cat Shortage.

Rats and mice are migrating in swarms from the Russian famine area and Budapest is now overrun with them. All efforts to rid the city of this scourge have failed and the devastation caused by them goes on apace.

The market halls, food stores and warehouses are swarming with the rodents, which run about even in the daytime. So dangerous have they become that when disturbed they will turn and show fight.

The situation is aggravated by the dearth of cats. During the war when food was scarce, thousands of families ate their cats. Since then the increasing demand for cat furs has taken a further toll. As a consequence, the comparatively exorbitant price of 3,000 to 4,000 kronen is being offered for a kitten by shopkeepers.

In some villages peasants have turned to the now lucrative business of cat breeding.

BUYS FARM WITH TIPS

Missouri Bellboy Saves $8,000 in Eleven Years.

Bert E. Cox of Joplin, Mo., has used the tips he received as bellboy in a hotel for 11 years to buy an $8,000 farm in a fertile valley south of the town. He intends to grow fruit and berries and to raise chickens on it, he says. He will continue to be a bellboy until he has enough money to build a comfortable home on the farm.

Cox invested his money in Liberty bonds during the World war. He bought a home and a motorcar while he was saving to realize his great ambition—to own a farm.

"Hard to save money?" asked One. "No, it was a comparatively easy matter, of course, you have to get the saving habit. Once that is done your bank account will grow."

British Army "Swagger."

It has been said that the English army authorities once issued an order that officers should not wear eyeglasses or spectacles, these being considered evidence of defective sight. A number of army officers then took to wearing the monocle, displaying the army order by a safe margin and giving to themselves, as it was thought at the time, an air of distinction, the thought being something like that which prompted so many officers and enlisted men to carry a short cane which came to be called a "swagger stick."

Daddy's Evening Fairy Tale

BY MARY GRAHAM BONNER

COPYRIGHT BY WESTERN NEWSPAPER UNION

THE SUN

"I believe much better in the winter than I do in the summer," laughed Mr. Sun.

"Well," said Madame Snow, "you are very well liked in the summer time, I've heard. Of course I only go by what I hear. I don't know anything about you in the summer time."

Madame Snow laughed a cold, cold laugh.

"Yes," said Mr. Snow, "I am very welcome in the summer time, though now and again I am complained of because I am not hot. Yes, they do complain of me now and again.

"But when I disappear for a few days there is a fuss. Oh, how they do complain then!

"They say that it doesn't seem like the summer time when the sun isn't out and they say other things like that.

"They are glad, I can tell you, when I come out after I have been taking a long rest.

"When a week goes by in the summer, as sometimes happens, and I have let the King of the Clouds and the Army of Raindrops, or old King Thunder and old Queen Thunder have their way about things, then when I appear again the people are just so pleased to see me that they smile all over their faces."

"How can they do that?" asked Madame Snow. "Don't they smile the same way at all times with their mouths and perhaps with their eyes?"

"Yes," said Mr. Snow. "They smile with their lips or mouths and their eyes twinkle, but when I say that they smile all over their faces—well, they do!

"They give such wonderful smiles such happy, happy smiles.

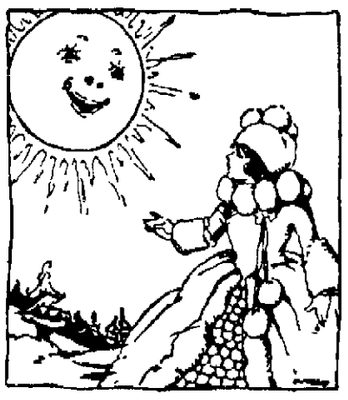

"Then I feel rather sorry I've left them for so long, but still I must give the others a chance.

"Then, too, there must be rain to keep the country in good condition.

"There must be plenty of rain, and sometimes, I will admit, I haven't always gone away when I should have done so.

"There have been times when things have become very, very dry and yet I have stayed about.

"Sometimes, you see, I can't always arrange a time that would suit the King of the Clouds and he can't arrange a time with me.

"But I am going to say that though I do a great deal of work in the summer, I also play some pranks.

"I do make things grow and I make people feel fine and well, and I help the flowers and all of those lovely things in the summer, but I have my pranks, which I play. I have my pranks."

"What are your pranks?" asked Madame Snow.

"Last summer," said Mr. Sun, "I had such an amusing time. There was a little boy who said the sun was not shining brightly enough for him. He said he could hardly feel any warmth from me at all.

"He didn't realize how hard I was shining until late that evening and, and then he did.

"His face was just as red as red could be. And the next day everyone said:

"'You were most certainly out in the sun yesterday.'

"'Yes,' he said, 'it was hotter than I thought and shone more brightly than I realized.'

"There was a prank I played on him.

"I play many pranks like that. I get the people all sunburnt and I freckle some of them.

"That's a joke, too! Oh, yes, I make freckles and I'm not going to tell anyone how I do it, for they might want to know how.

"I'm not sure that they would, but I don't know. They might. So I won't tell my little secret.

"In the winter I never do such things, and so I say that in the winter I behave better than in the summer."

"Oh," said Madame Snow, "you're such a good old Sun that it doesn't matter if you play a few pranks once in a while. I am quite sure about that."

"Four and twenty blackbirds baked in a pie
When the pie was opened the birds began to sing,
Wasn't that a dainty dish to set before a king?"

OPEN PIES

The open pie may be made so attractive that it is always a welcome dessert.

Coconut Pie.—Beat three eggs, add two tablespoonfuls of sugar, two cupfuls of scalded milk and one cupful of coconut. Pour into a deep-lined pie plate and bake in a moderate oven. When cool, cover with sweetened whipped cream, sprinkled generously with freshly grated coconut or other chopped nut meats.

Spice Pie.—Line a pie plate with rich pastry and spread a layer of marmalade or jelly over the bottom. Cream one-half cupful of butter with one-half cupful of sugar, add two well-beaten eggs, one tablespoonful of cream, one cupful of flour sifted with a teaspoonful of cinnamon and one-half teaspoonful of cloves and the same of baking powder. Bake until firm in a moderate oven. Decorate with cheese balls and serve.

Crumb Pie.—Line a baking dish with pastry. Beat four egg yolks with three-fourths of a cupful of sugar, add the grated rind and juice of an orange, one cupful each of finely chopped walnut meats and bread crumbs, one-half teaspoonful each of grated nutmeg, cinnamon, a pinch of cloves and ginger, with two teaspoonfuls of baking powder and the whites of two eggs, beaten stiff. Mix and pour into the shell. Bake in a moderate oven until firm.

Stuffed Egg Plant.—Take two medium-sized ripe egg plants, cut in halves, and remove the pulp without breaking the skin. To the pulp add a teaspoonful of salt, a little pepper and one tablespoonful of vinegar. Let stand one hour. Chop one onion, a clove of garlic and one shallot fine; add three tablespoonfuls of minced parsley, one-half cupful of mushrooms, chopped, also two tomatoes, chopped. Place in frying pan and fry a golden brown. Add the drained egg plant and one cupful of soaked bread crumbs, more salt and pepper, and fry until well cooked. Fill the shells, adding butter, and bake until the shells are tender.

Nellie Maxwell

The Birthday of a Papoose.

Wesley George Claremore, an Osage papoose, was one year old a few weeks ago, and his parents invited 75 members of the tribe to celebrate the event with them and attend a big feast, for which two deer were killed and served, says an Oklahoma newspaper. In addition there were two beeves, two hogs, a wagonload of turkeys, ducks and chickens, several cases of bananas, oranges, apples and other fruits, and continuous stacks of pies and cakes. Toast responses were made by Bacon Rind and Edgar McCarthy, former chiefs of the tribe, and Roanhorse, a member of the Osage council.

Wifey Taught Him.

Bachelor—Well, old man, one thing I notice about you since you've been married: you always have buttons on your clothes.

Benedict—Yes: Dolly taught me how to sew 'em on before we'd been married a week.

Starched Cash Like New.

A Detroit woman had what she styled a "conniption fit" recently. She was washing some aprons and forgot that she left some money in the pockets of one. She didn't remember it until she had starched them. "The money was soaked, but when I dried it and ironed it it was pretty stiff and resembled new currency. This caused the grocer to ask me where I'd made them," she said.

Besides, It Is Hard to Get Now.

"That's a bad cold you have, Mabel."

"Yes, Dorothy, it is."

"What have you taken for it, dearie?"

"Everything."

"In that case there's no use in me offering you any advice."—Louisville Courier-Journal.

We Have What We Advertise

Back To The Farm

It was easy enough to urge others to go back to the farm, but until electricity began to supply its energy and convenience in the rural districts few persons were willing themselves to go back.

Now on many farms throughout the country part of the work in the field is done by electric power, while the house is lighted and household conveniences are made possible. On such farms, life is different from what it used to be. A large part of the hardest work has been lifted from the shoulders of agriculture, and the back-to-the-farm movement has been accelerated.

There are 6,500,000 families living on "farms" in this country. The arduous lives of 2,000,000 of these families have been made more endurable by the introduction of electrical appliances, and their labor problems have been partly solved by the "burden-bearer," electricity.

Extension of such service to the farms not now enjoying it means that vast new capital must be invested. The electric light and power industry is regulated by the States, and the wages paid to the capital which must be employed in the industry likewise are fixed. As such wages are fixed fairly, more capital will be forthcoming to permit the extension of service to the farms, and city homes, and industries still calling for it.

Irrigation of millions of acres of land by electric pumping shows the importance of electricity to the development of agriculture. Utilization of electric power for many farm chores and tasks has helped solve the farm labor question and has reduced the cost of production of food stuffs, thus aiding in the battle against the High Cost of Living.

Extension of service to individual farms and farming communities requires large plant and distribution system investments, money for which can be "hired" only when companies are enabled to earn a return sufficient to attract additional money in competition with other industries also seeking new capital.

ROSENDALE.

Rosendale, Mar. 2.—The Home Bureau meeting held with Mrs. C. V. Hasbrouck recently, was well attended. All were pleased to meet Miss Jennie C. Fisher, new Home Demonstration agent for Ulster county. Miss Fisher after introduction, addressed the meeting, assuring all that she hoped to continue the work, with the help and support of the members. Miss Fisher made a good impression in her earnest appeal. She was followed by Miss Dora L. Earle of Ithaca, N. Y., with blackboard illustrations, on "Labor Saving Devices," in the home and the plan and arrangement of the kitchen which few women are consulted about when building for the saving of many steps. Miss Earle is a most pleasing speaker, relating many instances whereby housekeeping would become a pleasure instead of a burden. Refreshments were served and an hour of sociability brought the successful meeting to a close. The next meeting will be held latter-part of March.

Henry Mollenhauer has completed a course of studies at the New York State College of Agriculture at Cornell University, where he has been for some months and is now at the home of his father, Otto Mollenhauer.

Sensitive Tobacco.

Havana tobacco is the most delicate and sensitive of any tobacco grown. You can test this by subjecting a box of Havana cigars to extremes of heat or cold, moisture or dryness. The best temperature for Havana cigars is 60 degrees Fahrenheit. You may get a box of a good brand and find it a failure. But before you condemn the brand be sure that it is not the fault of the dealer, says a tobacco expert.

Thought.

Thinking leads man to knowledge; he may, see and hear, and read and learn, as much as he please, he will never know any of it, except that which he has thought over, that which by thinking he has made the property of his mind. Take away thought from man's life, and what remains?—Pestalozzi.

The Downward Path in Britain.

A little girl was haled before the justices for killing a farmer's poultry, not without using bad language. "Little girl," said the magistrate, "you see how one thing leads to another. You began by cursing your Maker, and you end by throwing a stone at a hen."—London Daily Chronicle.

Softening Hard Putty.

Putty that has become hardened by exposure, as around window glass, may be softened and removed by the use of the following mixture: Shake 8 pounds quicklime in water and add one pound pearlash, making the whole about the consistency of paint. Apply to the putty on both sides of the glass and let it remain for about 12 hours. It should then be possible to lift the glass out without trouble.

Fine Paper From Truck Patch.

Swiss chard is a vegetable which is not very highly esteemed though it has a great deal to recommend it. It grows profusely in almost any part of this country wherever planted. It has been recently discovered by some experiments in a sugar mill at Yakima, Wash., that the stalks and leaves of this plant are capable of making a very superior paper resembling the parchment made by the Japanese.

"Silent Room" for Testing Motors.

A "silent room," designed to enable the workmen to detect any defect causing excess friction, or a brunk in the smooth running gear of the motor, before its shipment is an innovation developed by a large manufacturer of automobiles. The room is designed after the manner of the chambers used in photograph factories for the creation of rounds, absolutely protected against outside sounds.

CREDIT TO MINES

Without Them, Modern Civilization Would Perish.

From the Cradle to the Grave, Man's Life Is Bound Up With Mineral Substances.

While this is being written the United States navy dirigible C-7 is circumnavigating Washington monument, pirouetting over the White House and flirting with the clouds over the capitol, says the Mining Congress Journal. It is filled with helium gas, an element which because of its nonflammability is expected make possible the saving of many lives during war and in the peace-time pursuit of commercial aerial transportation. It is one of civilization's latest developments, and apparently one of the best, and it is a 100 per cent product of the mineral industry.

Savages cultivate the fields. The lower animals have their highly developed transportation systems and maintain storage plants for the preservation of foods. Apes use wooden implements, ants run dairies and the birds are still the greatest architects and builders. Many other things may be done by instinct alone, but it takes brains to operate a mine. Mankind ceased to be brutish and began to be civilized when some creature more intelligent than the others fashioned the first implement out of stone. It was probably a woman, actuated by mother love and stern necessity to make a vessel to boil some bitter brew to cure young Ichthyrosimo Hippopolitibo's tummyache. From that time on civilization and mining developed contemporaneously hand in hand, each dependent upon the other, and today humanity from the cradle to the grave places its chief reliance upon the products of the mines.

The first substances appropriated to the use of the new-born babe are mineral substances—boracic acid, dropped in weak solution in the eyes to prevent blindness, and vaseline, applied to every other part of the body to soothe the tender skin and hasten its development. Everything modern man eats, wears, plays with and buys or sells is composed of or manufactured by the aid of the products of the mines, including the instrument with which he writes his last will and testament. He gives up the ghost on an iron bed, is placed in a casket held together by steel and laid in his last resting place, which his friends smooth over with a metal shovel. Or, if he is cremated, the antimony out of which the "silver" handles on the casket are made becomes volatilized and wends its gaseous way along with his soul to that ultimate destination of all miners, whose streets are paved with gold. Neither this world nor the next could be run in orthodox fashion without the mines.

Trapper De Luxe.

Hardships and vicissitudes seem a necessary part of the life of a north woods trapper. Sleeping night after night in deep snow, "mushing" along a dim powdery trail, going the rounds of his traps when the thermometer is forty degrees below zero—those are some of the things we think of when we think of the fur hunter. But in "Trailmakers of the Northwest," Mr. Paul L. Haworth shows that one trapper at least leads a life of luxury.

A certain Dr. Greene lives on Peace river and runs a line of traps on bare hillsides in sight of his cabin. Whenever he thinks it is time to make the round of his line he takes a pair of powerful field glasses and looks to see whether any of the traps have been sprung. If there is an animal in one of them, he has only to walk out and bring it in; if not he remains comfortably beside his cheerful fire. The method, though not ambitious, seems successful; one winter Dr. Greene caught a silver fox that he sold for several hundred dollars. — Youth's Companion.

Knew the Place.

A business firm recently adopted Elison's plan for testing the intelligence of men applying for positions. A man applying for a position as superintendent would be expected to answer all the questions on the list submitted. One wishing to become a clerk faced only half the list; as the job applied for dwindled in importance, the amount of knowledge necessary to secure it grew smaller.

A colored man who had applied for a job as porter received a card bearing the single question, "Who invented the cotton gin?"

"Well," said the clerk, to whom he returned the card, "what's the answer?"

"Say, boss," answered the darky, "Ah dunno who 'twus fust made dat stuff, but Ah knows whar you kin git some."—Harper's Magazine.

Getting Acquainted.

The bus was starting in the midst of a torrent of rain, when the conductor put his head inside and inquired:

"Will any gentleman get outside to oblige a lady?"

"She can come inside and sit on my knee if she likes," said a passenger jocularly.

To his great surprise a buxom woman bounced in and accepted his offer. After a time the man got into conversation with his fair burden and asked where she was going.

On hearing her destination he exclaimed:

"Bless my soul, that is my house!"

"Yes," said the fair one, blushing; "I'm the new cook!"—London Answers.

Why "French" High Heels.

It is said that Louis XVI appeared in court wearing high wooden heels on his shoes. He was not a tall man, and adopted this expedient to make himself regally impressive. The term French heel was applied to high heels and finally to a certain type of high heel.

AND THEY SLEPT "UPSTAIRS"

Childish Prank Not So Enjoyable as Youngsters Imagined It Was Going to Be.

An Indianapolis woman is fond of telling a story about her girlhood days. There were several children in the family and they went to school with other children perhaps a trifle better off as to this world's goods than they were. At any rate the other children were always talking about their upstairs. And there was no upstairs to the cottage where the Indianapolis woman's family lived—it was only a cottage. But children-like, they had to be able to say with cool disdain when they went to school: "Why, upstairs where we sleep—"

So when mother went downtown one day these small children laboriously took their little bed apart and carried it up the narrow, steep dark stairs that led to the attic. Then they carried up the bedclothes; then their little chairs. They were indeed going to sleep upstairs.

When mother came home she found out what had happened. She climbed the attic stairs, and there amid the dust and dirt and whatnots and cobwebs were the two beds.

So just to punish the children for their disobedience mother made them sleep up there a few nights in the hot weather, until they were glad they had no "upstairs."

TO CUT AUSTRALIAN ESTATES

Measure Almost Socialistic in Character Is Approved by Most of the Landholders.

Large Australian estates may have to be subdivided, according to the Sydney correspondent of a London paper.

The new South Wales government is reintroducing a large holding subdivision bill, compelling owners to subdivide for closer settlement any land exceeding $100,000 in value. If, for instance, the owner of land worth $250,000 refuses to subdivide it the government will compulsorily acquire $150,000 worth and make it available for closer settlement.

The intention is to pay immediate cash at current rates of interest to the owners. The measure, which is approved by most Australian individual landholders, but bitterly opposed by big land companies with headquarters in England, will have the effect of opening for cultivation large areas now utilized as sheep runs. Thus it will afford an opportunity for an increased agricultural population and scope for immigrants.

It is designed to mitigate the existing serious unrest arising out of the inability to provide Australian agriculturists with land. These people are being driven to the cities to swell the ranks of the unemployed, making dangerous centers of discontent.

Support of Royalty.

At the installation ceremony of King Feisul of Irak nothing had been left undone in producing the atmosphere necessary for such an occasion in the country of the Caliphs of Bagdad. The throne—or rather the chair of state—was a masterpiece in scarlet rep, tinsel and gilt. After the ceremony, which, it will be remembered, was an open-air affair, the ritual required that the throne should be removed. A stalwart Ethiopian raised it above his head and bore it away past the assembled multitude. The frame beneath the seat was simple deal, and across the boarding was the legend in stencil of a firm that exports Scotch whisky. It shall be nameless, because the most up-to-date advertisement manager could never have hoped for such a display. It was worth a king's ransom and yet it was free and unsolicited.—Manchester Guardian.

Australia's Water Supply.

Australia's wonderful underground water supply, her artesian basin system, might well rank among her greatest assets. But like other assets, the artesian water supply can be wasted, and Australians are noting with concern that in New South Wales there has been a total diminution in the flow of water from 208 selected water bores of something like 21,000,000 gallons a day, or about 23.8 per cent. It is now being recognized that the artesian water must be conserved by the partial closing of the bores, so that only the flow capable of being used will be allowed to issue. The irrigation commission is taking steps to penalize the careless bore owner.—Christian Science Monitor.

DOG MAKES 50-MILE HIKE TO RETURN TO HIS HOME

Didn't Think Much of Folks His Mistress Visited and Ran Away.

"Pecko," a reddish brown hound owned by Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Adams, of 15 Saxon road, Newton Highlands, Mass., which disappeared from Fall River, made a journey of fifty miles overland to his old home. His pads were worn by the hike, but otherwise he was in good condition.

Pecko's mistress was visiting her father, Philip D. Borden, at No. 669 Rock street, Fall River, and took the dog along with her. The first day at the Borden home was a discomforting one for the dog, and when night came he refused a warm bed in the house, preferring to rest in a snowbank. In the morning he did not answer the call for breakfast.

Mrs. Adams sent out a general alarm to the police of Fall River. She also advertised in the newspaper. Nothing was heard of him until, thirty-nine hours after his disappearance, he appeared at the home in Newton Highlands late at night, and aroused the occupants of the house by whines and barks.

Efficiency.

It is a convenience when making preserves, after they are put away in a closet, to make a list of what you have and fasten it on the closet door with a pencil attached; then when you take a jar out cross it off.

Gas Used.

Not counting debate in congress, Americans used 319,888,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas last year.

This is an achievement, comparing it with a generation ago when mother had to wash the smoked chimneys of the kerosene oil lamps and trim their wicks daily.

In about one more generation the only heating and lighting will be by electricity. A copper mine is a good legacy for grandchildren.

The Flapper Dollar.

Already the critics—call them hypers, if you like—are knocking our new silver coin. One writer calls it the "flapper dollar" and says the open-lipped girl thereupon looks as though she might be saying "Line's bizzy!" or "Say, lissen!" Just that sort of girl, you know. If the comment were not so obvious we would say something about money talking—but we refrain.—Boston Transcript.

Out of Order.

"That motion is out of order," said the chairman of a political meeting as he saw a rowdy raising his arm to throw an egg.—Pearson's Weekly.

Two Best-Educated Countries.

Scotland and Switzerland rank as the best educated countries in the world.

Worth Thinking About.

If our own interest is not sufficient to make us be careful, let us think of the interest to others.—Wagner.

Pockets in Garters.

Restoring Luster of Pearls.

Although there is no method known that will positively guarantee the restoration of the luster of a pearl which has become dull through careless handling, the Ceylonese are said to have a novel way of trying to restore it. They simply feed dull pearls to chickens. After the pearls remain in the chickens' crops a few hours, the fowls are killed and the pearls removed. The light friction to which they have been subjected in the crops of the chickens is supposed to restore their luster, at least to some extent.

"Elephant's Ear."

The "elephant's ear" is a Hawaiian or Fijian plant, with very large, bright green leaves, used to give subtropical effect in bedding. The root-stock is planted in good, moist soil out of doors or started in a hotbed or a greenhouse and transplanted. In the fall it is stored where dampness and frost cannot reach it. In the Pacific islands the root-stock is used for food extensively, the poi of Hawaii being made from it. The plant is called taro.

Popular Songs.

"It is a mistake I believe, to act too strongly, on the theory that to the public should be doled out only those things which certain authorities think they 'should have,'" said a prominent singer recently. "Let us consider the public's side. Let us give the public some of the things it really wants—even the simple song which the critic condemns for its excess of sentiment, if we can deliver it so that the public is touched and responds."

Mistakes We Often Make.

There is a proverb which reads—"The man who never made a mistake never made anything else." There is a great deal of truth in that saying. Sometimes we come across one of those perfect individuals who claims never to make mistakes, but more often we find that these very same persons not only make mistakes but very grave ones.

Long Shoe Points.

At one time—in the Fourteenth or Fifteenth century—people wore the points of their shoes so long that they were in danger of tumbling over them when they walked. To overcome this inconvenience it became fashionable for both men and women to tie their shoe points to their knees by laces or chains.

The Center of Population.

The center of population is the center of gravity of the population of a country, each individual being assumed to have the same weight. In the United States the center of population has followed the parallel of 39 degrees latitude and has moved in a westward direction during the last 125 years.

Marriage, Hey!

You said you were married, I think? Well, I suppose it is wise, after all. It settles, centralizes and confirms a man, I have heard. Yes, it makes the world definite to him; it removes his marital subjectiveness, and makes all things objective; nine small children, for instance, may be considered objective. Marriage, hey! A fine thing, no doubt, no doubt—domestic—pretty—nice, all round. So you are married? —From "Pierre" by Herman Melville.

His Examination Concluded.

A Scotch farmer was giving his testimony in favor of a certain [illegible]. "Is it true," said the opposing attorney, "that you told Mr. Blank you were willing to give your evidence on the other side if they would pay you better?" "Aye," replied the farmer; then, after a pause, "and let me put the same question to you—if ye have been offered a bigger fee than ye have been on the ither side yersel'?"—Boston Transcript.

Yield Valuable Oil.

Have You Ever Thought

—what kind of a place Ulster County would be to live in if there were no plumbing conveniences in the homes? Think of the plagues, of the filth, of the unhappiness which would be sure to accompany such a state!

Then think of what an ideal county ours could be with every home comfortably and completely equipped with every modern plumbing convenience.

Better plumbing can do for your home what it has done for our city - MAKE IT A BETTER AND HEALTHIER PLACE TO LIVE IN.

GREAT IS CUPID

Few Escape Shafts of Small God of Love.

Affection Has Been Well Described as a Specific Ailment; Also a Form of Madness.

"Love is like measles," said a well-known novelist, "for nearly every one must go through it."

She might with equal truth have died. And like measles it is a curious case with its marked and distinguished symptoms with varying periods of incubation and often with serious consequences."

However sentimentalists may scoff love is beyond doubt a specific disease—"a fever, a ferment in the blood" a fact which has been recognized by writers of all ages from Terence, who wrote "In love, in delirium," to Mrs. E. B. Browning who said "We catch love and fevers in the vulgar way."

Its attack is sometimes instantaneous remarks a London Tit-Bit writer. A fetching curl, a sudden glance from a pair of pretty eyes, the pout of pretty lips, a dimple that comes and goes, the sudden muscle of a calf—and for many a man the deed is done.

John Leech succumbed hopelessly to the sight of a pretty face in a London street; a dainty figure seen through his lorgnette was Garibaldi's Lucrezia; undoing a sudden shower and a shared umbrella cost Walter Scott his heart.

In most men the disease creeps in slowly, marked by varying but recognizable symptoms—"a foolish selection of disordered sentimentalities [illegible] fits of moodiness and absorption and a brooding, hangdog [illegible]

[illegible] become unsociable and irritable, now almost hysterical in their [illegible] now plunged in an abyss of [illegible] Their appetite fails, they lose flesh.

[illegible] proximity to the loved one they often act in a manner distressing to themselves and idiotic to others. At a word they will flame scarlet and utter incoherences or imbecilities. They will sit on their hats or put the sugar tongs in the milk jug.

Then when at last the tortures of incubation are over and the disease is in full swing the whole world is metamorphosed for them.

This is the stage of delirium, in which they see glorious visions and move among phantoms. For them there is only one woman in all the world. She is a queen, a goddess. Her faults are virtues, her virtues divine.

Her voice though it be raucous as that of raven is sweetest music; her face, her form are the crown of female perfection. If they may not live for her, all the hours they crave of the gods is to be allowed to die for her.

This period of ecstasy may be long or short. Happy the man who soon emerges from it into sanity, for the other way disaster and tragedy lie.

It was in this mood that Hazlitt glorified the "kitchen slavey" into a divinity and worshipped prostrate at her shrine, and it was in this mood that hundreds of men have closed great careers in tragedy from Marc Antony to Boulanger who shot himself on his adored one's grave.

But whatever the symptoms, love is, beyond all question a disease and full of perils to its victim. It blinds his eyes, paralyzes his judgment. It is like anger, a madness, though, unfortunately not always brief.

No Wonder Folks Laughed.

The sun was hiding somewhere. Anyway it was nowhere to be seen. Little drops of rain splashed on the window panes.

Taking an umbrella from the rack in the hall, Saxton Daggles made his way downtown to the office.

"Is it my imagination or are people really turning round to look at me?" he muttered, as he crossed over one street and walked down another.

The rain was coming down a little faster now. People scurried away, seeking shelter in neighboring doorways.

"Yeah, it isn't my imagination," Daggles speculated to himself. "And people are looking at me!"

"Darn it!" exclaimed Saxton Daggles crossly, for he was stocking master by his profession. "I'll find out why they're all looking at me."

And he stood, a bewildering letter carrier.

"Is there anything about me that would make people turn and stare?" he asked.

"Well, there's something above you that might," returned the letter carrier.

Looking up quickly Saxton Daggles saw that he had been carrying a cane raised in the air instead of his umbrella, the whole time and in all the pouring rain.

Looking down again he found it was quite wet.—Detroit News.

Canada's Mineral Production.

The value of Canada's mineral production for 1921 is officially estimated at $169,552,000. This is a considerable reduction from that of 1920 when the figures were $227,859,000. While in certain departments there was a falling off in production, due partially to business depression, still there is reason for the statement that the lower figures are due largely to the marked reduction in the price of minerals. Toward the end of the year the demand became more active, prices manifested a tendency to rise and with the gradual absorption of surplus stocks a general improvement in business was noted.

80-YEAR-OLD WOMAN MAYOR OF OHIO CITY

Introducing Her Honor, Mrs. Mary McFadden, newly chosen mayor of Magnetic Springs, Ohio.

Already she has a mop squad busy cleaning out the town hall and she expects to clean the whole town, physically, and force bootleggers, etc., to seek other climes.

Mrs. McFadden has never had an idle day in her eighty years of life and she will continue to do her own housework while mayoring—having made the sole concession of sending out the family laundry. She has announced an ambition to "mother the whole town."

EATS MANY RAW EGGS

Fifty-two raw eggs provided a supper for Frank Lambrest, a Belgian, which he apparently enjoyed. This is how it came about: Lambrest went into a grocery store in Hollidaysburgh, Pa., to make purchases. The owner happened to be opening a crate of eggs, four of which were broken. He offered them to Lambrest, who broke the small ends and quickly drained the shells of their contents.

"If you can eat three dozen eggs raw I'll not charge you a cent, but if you can't, you pay for the three dozen," said the grocer.

"You're on," replied Lambrest and he started in. He disposed of the three dozen as fast as he could break the shells.

"I'll bet you cannot eat another dozen," said the astonished grocer.

"Taken!" answered Lambrest, who resumed his eating. After swallowing the last egg Lambrest lighted a cigar, thanked his host and departed for home, feeling comfortable.

British Cabinet Councils.

Trade union rules do not apply in Downing street, or the British government would not have adopted the unusual course of having a cabinet meeting on Sunday to discuss one of the latest phases of the Irish question. There have been Sunday sittings of the house—one of them was held to protest against Charles I going to Scotland—but Sunday cabinets are so uncommon as to be included in the "freak" meetings of that powerful body. The most unusual of the kind was that held by Pitt while being confined to his bed at his house at Hayes, sent for the Duke of Newcastle to come and see him there. The room had two beds but no fire so that the duke crept under the clothes of a bed in another part of the room. Walpole says that Pitt's long nose and his black beard of several days' growth added to the grotesque nature of the scene.—Christian Science Monitor.

GEM LONG PRIZED

Emerald Figures Largely in History and Legend.

Princess Mary's Love Stone Has Inspired Both Saints and Poets—Referred To in Scriptures.

Emeralds will be set in the most fashionable engagement rings of the future, for Princess Mary had an emerald engagement ring.

The finest emeralds are worth $2,500 a carat, while a good-sized gem might weigh anything from four to six carats; $350 to $400 a carat is a minimum price. The output of emeralds is very small.

The emerald is given a place of honor in history and literature. The beautiful gem was most praised among the ancients, not only for its beauty, but also on account of its rarity. It was a favorite stone with the Roman emperors and, later, with high dignitaries of the church. It is named twice in the book of Exodus as one of the 12 jewels in the high priest's breastplate of judgment, ranking in the second row with the sapphire and the diamond.

The best-known scriptural references are in Revelation, where the rainbow around the throne is compared in its vivid greenness to an emerald; while the same jewel forms one of the 12 foundations of the new Jerusalem.

George Eliot, in "Middlemarch," refers to the singular beauty of these passages. "It is strange," she says, "how deeply colors seem to penetrate one, like scent. I suppose that is the reason why gems are used as spiritual emblems in the Revelation of St. John. They look like fragments of heaven."

In Tennyson's poem, "Columbus," the discoverer used the passage in Revelation to describe the San Salvador as he first descried it.

In contrast we may mention the "emerald monocle" through which Nero, whom the latest commentators regard as the "Beast" of the Revelation, gazed at the agonies of his victims in the arena.

A more pleasant legend may be quoted from Montalembert, the famous French author. He describes how in the early ages of monasticism a certain monastery was transformed by its founder into a hospital for lepers and cripples. "Behold," said he, in showing the ladies of Alexandria the upper floor, which was reserved for women, "behold, my jacinths"; then, in conducting them to the floor below, where the men were placed, "See my emeralds."

The most celebrated medieval gem was the so-called "emerald" of Genoa, known as the Sacro Catino. It was presented early in the Twelfth century to the cathedral by the crusader Embriaco, having been brought by him from the siege of Caesarea.

The relic, a huge single stone, was said to be the dish from which our Lord ate the Last Supper. It was believed by some to have been given by Solomon to the queen of Sheba.

The Sacro Catino was removed to Paris during Napoleon's wars, and was discovered to be only an ancient piece of Venetian glass. It is still shown, much mended, in the cathedral of Genoa, to which place it was restored by the French.

In the Fifteenth and Sixteenth centuries the emerald is mentioned frequently among inventories of crown jewels. Mary Queen of Scots possessed at one time many specimens of this regal gem.

Caused Deep Depression in Plateau.

When the railway was opened from a point near Luxor into the Libyan desert there was rendered easy the approach of the oasis of Khargeh, which is regarded as a typical example of these isolated centers of life. For some years a British scientist and explorer made a study of this oasis, observing the phenomena of springs, moving sands, wells, etc.

The Libyan oases are deep depressions in a lofty plateau which has a maximum elevation of nearly 2,000 feet, but the bottoms of the oases are only from 100 to 300 feet above sea level. They are underlain by beds of sandstone, which are the sources of the water supply. Artesian wells 400 feet deep form practically inexhaustible means of irrigation and such deep wells have been used from ancient times. The depressions were once the beds of lakes, and the water in the sandstone probably has its sources in the Angsanian highlands.

Amusing the Natives.

The marine recruit had just arrived in Haiti and the sergeant was giving him some instruction in outpost duty. As they walked over a high ridge, there were two sharp reports of a rifle and little clouds of dust spurted up that, to the recruit seemed uncomfortably close.

"What's that, sergeant?" asked the newcomer.

"Oh, only a couple of those spicks trying to bump us off," returned the sergeant, as he trudged calmly ahead. "They take pot shots at me every time I pass this spot."

"It's a bit dangerous, isn't it, sergeant?"

"Well, it might be dangerous," explained the non-com, "if those birds could come within twenty feet or so of hittin' a guy. But as long as they're such rotten shots, I figure they might as well amuse themselves that way, as not. It helps to keep them out of mischief."

Demand for Electric Power.

The latest figures on water power applications, filed with the federal government, show a contemplated new development of 14,000,000 horse-power, which indicates the increased demand for electric power. This would be sufficient to supply power for twenty-two cities the size of Chicago, it is estimated.

True Humor.

In the end we find that the test of true humor is the reaction it makes to the depression, sorrow and sadness of life and its power to give brightness and courage in the midst of disaster. The joke is worth while that makes life more possible and sorrow a little less impossible—that brings a smile amid tears, as sunshine in the heart of clouds is seen cutting its way through the darkness. Yet, despite England's training in trouble, what is there finer than the delicate humor of Oliver Wendell Holmes?—Exchange.

Perilous "Sport."

What is the world's most dangerous sport? Mountain climbing takes many victims, but descending into the craters of volcanoes beats it. The present activity of Vesuvius calls attention to it. The descent must be made in fireproof clothes and gas mask. The air is full of stifling fumes and there is always the sporting chance that the volcano may start erupting. The floor of an active volcano is usually semi-liquid. Parts are solid enough to stand upon, others are liquified rock.

Insects That Defy Winter.

In the dead wood of old snags are many insects that live through the winter regardless of how cold it gets; creatures whose weak bodies seem to defy the frigid temperature. Pull off a bit of old bark from a snag, and note that there is life beneath it; little people that try to scurry for cover when their home is attacked. They are not so agile as when the weather is warm, but they are not in a state of torpor.

Finny Tribe in Cold Weather.

All fish do not hibernate during the winter. Some spend their homes in holes or beneath rocks and roots and get along very well without food during the cold weather, but they are not torpid like the bears and groundhogs that hibernate. Most of the fish swim about in the cold water and gather a living in winter just as they do in summer, but none of them requires so much food when the water is cold.

Bird Sanctuaries in Canada.

Bird sanctuaries are being created in suitable places throughout Canada to protect the breeding grounds of water fowl and other important bird localities. The protection of waterfowl in the great plains is most important. The water fowl need the protection because of the increase in agriculture and the drainage of many of their former nesting areas.

Verse Writing Taught in School.

In Chinese schools, just before the noonday recess, the teacher writes a sentiment, a proverb, or a proposition upon a slip of red paper and pastes it upon the door. Each boy as he goes out reads the lines, and in the afternoon gives to the teacher another line which will, with the first, make a couplet.

Then the Club Adjourned.

Some one told a good dog story and the inevitable better one followed. "We had a cat at home," related the quiet man in the corner, "which was fond of playing with the wife's ball of wool. One day the cat swallowed it, and some months later when kittens were born they were all wearing jumpers."

Pleasing Mouth.

The pleasing mouth has lips that curve from thin outer corners to a ripe fullness at the middle. The sweep should be upward to a fine cleft at the middle of the upper lip. A deep cleft just about the center of the upper lip is one of the recognized marks of beauty.

Scent in Each Wood.

Were our sense of smell more highly developed and better trained, says the American Forestry Magazine, we should find that every wood has its own peculiar scent by which alone it could be distinguished from all the rest.

Bees Cut Bark of Trees.

Some species of bees in South America cut the bark of the rubber trees in order to cause a flow of the sap. The gum is employed by the bees as a ready-made wax for their nests.

For Inspection.

Outside of a large office building downtown two young girls stopped and consulted the want ads of the newspaper they carried. The address was evidently correct. The taller of the two girls, and evidently the elder, handed the paper she was carrying to her companion. She then pulled the long jet earrings out of her ears, wiped her lips and her cheeks carefully with a handkerchief, set her sailor hat straight on her head and entered the building.

Her friend waited. A few minutes later the girl swaggered out of the building.

"Job's taken" she announced. She took her earrings back and refastened them in her ears. Turning her head toward the building she carefully remodeled her complexion and the two sauntered down La Salle street.—Chicago Journal.

Just Made It.

Mike called for a pint of beer and tossed a bright new half a crown on the bar counter.

The barman looked suspiciously at the coin, weighed it in his hand, then jested it several times on the counter.

"Look here, old sport," said the barman. "Where did you get this thing from? It's not a good one."

"What do you mean?" returned Mike. "I'm sure it is a good one. Why, I only made the blithering thing this morning."—London Answers.

Select Path and Follow It.

Make your own life. Don't live anyone else's. Take your chances. Don't be afraid of what's back of you or what's before you. Just live the best you know how, and live it strong.

Temperamental.

Six-year-old Bessie, returning from church and eager to tell the news, said, "Oh, mother, we have a new terror in the choir."—Boston Transcript.

TROY TO PLAY HERE TONIGHT

The Troy quintet plays the locals this evening at the armory court, and an exciting and interesting battle is looked for.

Troy is a fast aggregation and is second in league standing so far this half season. The Trojan's lineup starting the game will probably be Meuller and Evers, forwards; Lopchick, center, and Sheehan and Haverty, guards.

In the Kingston lineup new faces will again be seen. Lehr and Jimmie Clinton are reported to be with Gloversville and are expected to play with that team against Cohoes tonight. The locals' lineup starting the game this evening will be different than in the past. The usual dancing will follow the contest, which is scheduled for 8:30.

BASKETBALL AT Y. M. C. A.

Thursday evening at the Y. M. C. A. the Wanderers lost the Ramblers on the court with a 25 point lead and a final score of 30-5. And all of the outward marks of a real football scrimmage were in evidence, since two men pounded deaf ears on the floor as "knock-outs" and thought that the final judgment day had come. But the finer points of the game find Van Bramer and Smith leading the scorers with 12 and 10 points respectively as their donation. The Ramblers lost the beaten track and had it not been for the shining lights of Becker, Wood and Gaddis they would not have scored even their five points.

The Rangers-Crescents bout was intensely more interesting than its predecessor and it appears that the Rangers have the knack of befuddling their opponents to the extent that they do not know where they are; the Rangers "ranged" from out of the scrimmage with a final score something like 30-16. Barmann and Winters cashed the points for Captain Bob Murray and tagging along next in line was Harris with 7 points to his credit. But it was Captain Bob who generally gave them the ball so that they could score as he scooped the sphere from mid air with his flail-like arms. The Mooney boys had their leaders in Brown, Chet Dolson and Dan Noble who, between them, had the sixteen points. The leaders had to follow some one and consequently Charles Shultis gave them the ball so that they might score; Shultis was ably assisted in this little act of kindness by Fred Meeker.

The standings of the teams in the Senior league:

Bran Will Free Your Entire Family from Constipation!

EIGHT MILLION PEOPLE were admitted to the hospitals of America last year. Nine-tenths of the sickness can be traced to constipation! If every man, woman and child would eat Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, each day, nine-tenths of all sickness would be eliminated!

Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is not a "remedy." It is nature's health food. Bran acts as a sweeper, at the same time cleansing and purifying without irritation or discomfort! Results are astounding!

Physicians indorse the use of Kellogg's Bran for constipation because it corrects constipation as a food—not as a "remedy"! Your physician will tell you that the desirable way to relieve constipation is through food. We guarantee Kellogg's Bran will relieve constipation permanently if at least two tablespoonfuls are eaten regularly. Chronic cases should use as much more as necessary.

When Kellogg's Bran is eaten regularly it will also clear up a pimply complexion and sweeten the breath.

And, Kellogg's Bran, cooked and krumbled, is deliciously good! Kellogg's has an appetizing nut-like flavor, is crisp and adds zest to any food with which it is eaten. Or, it's just fine to eat as a cereal! Or sprinkle it over your favorite cereal! Kellogg's Bran is used in muffins, raisin bread, macaroons, pancakes and in a hundred other palate-tickling ways—and all the time building health!

Start the children eating Kellogg's Bran. It will actually increase their growth. Get it at your grocer's.
